

TO THE PACIFIC COAST.

The Famous Sunset Limited Trains of the Southern Pacific Company.

From the emigrant wagon of the early pioneer across the continent to the first railway car was a gigantic stride, but perhaps no greater than the evolution of the railway car itself.

The rivalry between the transcontinental lines has tended to improve the equipment and furnishings of trains, until it seems as though perfection had been reached; and now comes the Southern Pacific company with its Sunset Limited train, which is a perfect gem in itself. The Sunset route of this company via New Orleans has been growing in popularity as a fall and winter route, and in the winter season of 1894 and 1895 the idea was first carried into practical operation of running a solid vestibule train from New Orleans to San Francisco with dining car attached. The popularity of this service is evinced when it is known that about sixty-five per cent. of the California travel last season was carried by this route. In such enterprises improvements suggest other improvements, and these in turn suggest others, and the superb outfit of the Sunset Limited for the coming season will excel anything that has been offered the traveling public in this country.

The cars comprising this train were manufactured by the Pullman company especially for this service, and are models of beauty and strength. In addition to the regular sleeping cars of the latest pattern there will also be run combined boudoir and drawing room cars. These highest achievements of the car builders' art are of extra length, seventy-seven feet over all, and will be fitted with seven separate sleeping apartments, each provided with its own entrance. These compartments are complete in themselves and are fitted with two sleeping berths and washstand with necessary lavatory fittings. The rooms open on to an alleyway on one side of the car. At one end of the car there is a beautifully furnished parlor, or drawing room, and a maid will be in attendance to look after the wants of the ladies. The gentlemen have heretofore had the maximum of comfort, and opportunities for freedom of movement not enjoyed by the ladies, who have been compelled to pass their time in the sleeping cars, but with the inauguration of the ladies' parlor, or drawing room, all is changed. Bowling along on the ideal train, fifty-eight hours to Los Angeles, seventy-five hours to San Francisco, traveling is reduced to the minimum of inconvenience and irksomeness, and when thought of in connection with the primitive "ox cart" causes man to dwell in insignificance beside his own handiwork.

In the dining cars of the Sunset Limited meals are served on the European plan, and the bill of fare is an appetizing one. Although the train is a special limited train, all first-class one way or round trip tickets are accepted for passage with, of course, the necessary Pullman car ticket.

These trains will be run semi-weekly, Mondays and Thursdays, commencing October 31, and do not conflict with the regular trains which furnish daily Pullman and buffet car service to California.

It is impossible to cover all the ground in an article of this length, and people traveling to the Pacific coast this season would do well to correspond with E. E. Currier, New England agent of the Southern Pacific company, 9 State street, Boston, Mass.

W. C. T. U.

To the Editor of the JOURNAL and COURIER: My dear sir: Please correct a misstatement in your issue of last Thursday morning concerning the county meeting of the W. C. T. U. held Wednesday in Dwight Place chapel. I made no speech at all. The fall work and colored work of W. C. T. U. No. 2 was done by Mrs. Linsley and her helpers, and Mrs. Tye, and was so reported from the platform that day by our efficient secretary, Mrs. L. P. Mallory.

Honor to whom honor is due. While I sympathize heartily with all the lines of work done by W. C. T. U. throughout the world, and especially in this city and state, I am not willing to take credit, either privately or publicly, that does not belong to me. Mrs. Linsley, Mrs. Storer, Mrs. Ives and others with whose names I am not so familiar, deserve great credit for the evangelistic and temperance work they have done and are doing.

MARY BLAIR MOODY, President New Haven W. C. T. U. No. 2.

Stopped a Runaway.

A horse owned by G. W. Hazel of Church street ran away on State street yesterday afternoon. The animal tore down from Grand avenue, zigzagging at every few yards to avoid some teams. At corner of State and Chapel streets Officer William Doherty, by a well directed effort, caught and stopped the animal and averted the possibility of a serious accident further down the thoroughfare, which was lined with vehicles. The horse in a previous runaway smashed things up pretty badly.

THE REDEMPTION TUESDAY NEXT.

A Great Cast—Exceptional Solists—A Correspondent Who Wants the Tuesday Prayer-meetings Postponed—Appeal to Fast.

On Tuesday at the Hyperion Gounod's marvellously dramatic oratorio, "The Redemption," will be presented by the Gounod society with all the brilliant features which have invariably characterized these performances in the past. It is doubtful if any single concert in the country is carried through with more spirit and more thorough attention to detail or with as great an aggregate of expense.

The great chorus of the society, 250 strong, under the leadership of the famous Agnietto, will be supported by the Boston Festival orchestra, augmented by four extra trumpeters, and Signor Fabiani from the Paris Conservatoire and harpist to the Russian and Austrian Imperial courts. The following far famed solists have also been engaged: Mrs. Corinne Moore-Lawson of Cincinnati, the greatest lyric soprano of the day, pre-eminent in oratorio and of rare physical beauty; Miss Gertrude May Steln of New York, already a prime favorite in New Haven, possessing a beautiful contralto voice of great range, a singer of glorious abilities and with a striking and magnetic presence; W. H. Rieger, who is one of the two or three greatest American tenors and too favorably known here to need further comment; and Dr. Carl Duff of New York, the legitimate successor of the great Myron W. Whitney. Dr. Duff has a magnificent voice, rich and sympathetic and is a most thorough artist. He has made a special study of "The Redemption" and will certainly create a sensation here.

Seats are now selling at the Hyperion. The advance sale thus far has been very great and those who desire to attend should apply at once. Some excellent seats may be found this morning.

Librettos containing the words of the oratorio and full analysis of the work may be found at the music stores and also at the box office.

There has been a general desire expressed among many church people who wish to attend the oratorio that the pastors of the churches in the city would postpone the Tuesday evening prayer meeting until later in the week. We print a communication to this effect below:

AN APPEAL.

To the Editor of the JOURNAL and COURIER: We presume the officers of the Gounod society had good reasons for choosing Tuesday evening next for their oratorio, but it is unfortunate that many of us will be unable to hear the "Redemption" on account of our church meetings on that night. I make an appeal for myself and others that the various congregational pastors consider the advisability of changing the Tuesday service to some other night and give us this coveted opportunity. I agree with the correspondent of an evening paper that the performance of the great oratorio constitute "exceptional opportunities for true worship." X. Y. Z.

WALLINGFORD.

The switcher, which comes up from New Haven every morning to do the work at this station, was down on the spur track in R. Wallace & Sons' yard about noon yesterday, when off the track it went and over on its side. The accident was probably due to the sinking of the track. The wrecker was sent down from Hartford, and at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the switcher had not been righted up.

The New York World's society column has the announcement of the coming marriage of Henry G. Dearth, the artist, to Miss Cornelia Van Rensselaer Vail of New York at Grace church about Christmas time. The prospective bridegroom is well known here, where he has spent several summers at the home of his sister, Mrs. George A. Stocking, formerly of Center street.

The entertainment of Aquila social, D. of R. in the armory next Wednesday evening promises to be a pleasant event. For the entertainment the committee has secured the Empire Banjo club and Miss Hattie Florence Gilbert, the eleventh of Meriden.

While excavating for the foundation for a new building at the Housatonic Manufacturing company's factory some of the workmen unearthed, about two feet from the surface, a quantity of cheap jewelry, silverware and watches, which it is supposed was buried while the Domestic Manufacturing company was doing business in the building and just before the visit of the government officials inspecting as to the articles sent through the mail.

The musical program for the bazaar of Mizpah chapter, O. E. S., in the armory this evening is as follows: Piano solo, C. R. Cruttenberg; singing by quartet, Mrs. J. S. Snyder, Miss Nellie Holmes, Thomas Peers and J. S. Snyder; vocal solo, Miss Bessie Hull; vocal solo, Miss Georgietta Whittaker; baritone solo, W. J. Peers; duet, Miss Hull and Miss Whittaker; piano solo, Miss Carlotta Barrett.

on his sea voyage to Jacksonville, Fla., but experienced rough weather around Cape Hatteras, but he was not seasick, and amused himself by taking snapshots with his camera of some of the other passengers who were losing their dinner over the side of the steamer. He will be back in Wallingford again next Friday.

The attempt at a meeting of the board of burgesses last evening was a failure. On the evening of the regular meeting, last Tuesday evening, owing to the adjourned town meeting in town hall, it was decided not to hold a session of the board. At the regular time of meeting there were present Warden Morris, Clerk Hale, Burgesses Kimberly and Dorrigan. The matter was talked over and without taking a regular vote Warden Morris adjourned the meeting until Friday evening. Last evening all the members were present, but owing to the uncertainty of the legality of holding a meeting under the circumstances nothing was done regarding business, but the clerk drew up a regular call for a special meeting for Monday evening, which was read to the members, as the charter requires, and the assembly was dissolved to meet again Monday evening.

Arthur H. Dutton post, G. A. R., held its annual meeting last evening and elected as officers: Silas L. Hall, commander. David Ross, senior vice. S. H. Whitaker, junior vice. J. S. There was quite a little excitement at the Belmont house yesterday when the landlord and one of the boarders, one of the workmen on H. L. Judd & Co.'s new factory, had a lively set-to, which resulted disastrously to the landlord, whose face was lacerated to look at after the scuffle was over. No arrests have as yet been made.

The switcher which was off the track in Wallace's yard was got on the track again just before 6 o'clock. A broken rail was the cause of the accident.

Councilman John H. Pearce is still ill at his home on Wooster street, but was feeling much better yesterday and it is hoped he will be able to be about in the course of a week or so.
